NOBLE Member Patrick Ridenhour Sworn in as Danbury, CT Chief of Police

Danbury, CT--On July 11, 2016, NOBLE CT Chapter Recording Secretary Patrick Ridenhour was sworn in as the new Chief, and first African-American, of the Danbury, CT Police Department after serving as Chief of the Stratford, CT Police Department for the past five years.

Chief Ridenhour began his career 28 years ago as a member of the Waterbury, CT Police Department, the city where he was born and raised. He served in a variety of positions, rising through the ranks to the position of Assistant Deputy Chief, where he served as Chief of the Patrol, Communications, Community Services, and Animal Control Divisions. He was the first African-American in the department's history to achieve the ranks of Captain and Assistant Deputy Chief. In April 2011 he was named the Interim Chief and permanently promoted to Chief 11 months later in March 2012, again becoming the first African-American to hold the position. In June 2016 Danbury Mayor Mark Boughton selected Mr. Ridenhour to lead the 155 member Danbury Police Department, replacing retiring Chief Al Baker. Located in Fairfield County, Danbury is the largest city in

Obama White House Recognizes Wilmington Police Department's Community Policing Efforts

White House touts Chief Cummings as a "shining light" for leading community policing efforts and modernizing the Wilmington Police Department

Since June, the White House, in collaboration with the Department of Justice's Office of Community Oriented Policing Services, has hosted six briefings with local law enforcement agencies in an effort to help departments learn how to implement recommendations established by President Barack Obama's Task Force on 21st Century Policing. White House officials acknowledged Chief of Police Bobby Cummings participation in a recent briefing, and recognized his efforts to modernize the Wilmington Police Department and implement community policing practices throughout the department.

In a blog post, the White House identifies Chief Cummings as an example in sharing his best practices and experiences with fellow law enforcement officials:

Wilmington (DE) Police Chief Bobby Cummings is another shining light, and recently spoke at one of the briefings about his work to strengthen community policing and improve technology within his department. Chief Cummings spoke about how, with the help of Department of Justice funding, he has been able to train his staff on officer safety, and emphasize that his officers...
