NOBLE Has Grave Concerns Over DACA Decision

ALEXANDRIA, VA- From 1986 to date, the federal government has spent over $236 billion on immigration enforcement. The exhaustive nature in funding and manpower related to immigration enforcement over the past three decades has placed a large burden on local law enforcement resources with implications growing precipitously as a result of President Trump's recent DACA decision.

The National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE) expresses deep concern over the budget implications associated with enforcing regulatory procedures under the DACA rescission. Additionally, the timing allotted to law enforcement in establishing protocols under the rescission places stress on many local departments. Congressional leadership should come together in comprising an immigration reform bill that would encompass Dreamers and those DACA eligible expeditiously to avoid unnecessary strain on law enforcement resources.

About the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives

Since 1976, The National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE) has served as the conscience of law enforcement by being committed to justice by action. NOBLE represents over 3,000 members internationally, who are primarily African-American chief executive officers of law enforcement agencies at federal, state, county and municipal levels, other law enforcement administrators, and criminal justice practitioners.
