Caring For Others, Delivering Good, Inc and the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives Bring Supplies to 10,000 Fayetteville Residents on Nov. 9

WHAT The rain has stopped, but North Carolina residents are still suffering from the effects of Hurricane Florence. To alleviate some of the needs of families whose homes and belongings were destroyed by the storm's devastating path, Caring For Others, Delivering Good, Inc. and the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE), in partnership with the Mayor and Chief of Police of Fayetteville, North Carolina, will bring up to 10 semi-truckloads of supplies to families of the town.

To date, this is the largest distribution the three organizations have hosted together and includes much-needed items, such as apparel, undergarments, shoes and more to help families rebuild after the effects of Hurricane Florence. The one-day, pop-up event will serve approximately 10,000 individuals.
