CJ Davis serves as 1st VP of NOBLE. On August 1, 2018, Chief CJ Davis was inducted as the 42nd 1st Vice President of the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE). Chief Davis leads the Durham, NC Police Department, where she took the helm in June 2016 after rising to the top from a field of over 40 candidates. She is the first Black female to lead the Durham Police Department. Chief Davis previously served as a Deputy Chief at the Atlanta Police Department, where she rose through the ranks throughout her 30-year career.

Shortly after being newly installed at Durham PD, Chief Davis said in an interview, "I feel that my legacy here should be one of inclusion, one of change for a positive direction, one of strong committed relationships with the community we serve - I would like for every Durham police officer to be well received in any community forum that they enter. It should not be a hostile environment."

Chief Davis has numerous law enforcement affiliations; and is an FBI National Academy graduate. She is a wife, mother and grandmother, and has a heart for mentoring young people.

Chief Davis is also a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. and The Links, Inc.
NOBLE Women ROCK!

Happy New Year! As we embark on the blessing of seeing another year, we are grateful for the many strides NOBLE women made in 2018. Promotions to Chief, executive ranks, command officer ranks, lateral special units, and hard earned retirements were all obtained by many of our dynamic women. Congratulations to all who continued on the path of progress, and to those who bid adieu after careers of dedicated service!
